FREQUENTLY ASKED QUESTIONS

1. A lawsuit sounds complicated. Why should I participate?

This is not a lawsuit. Once the preliminary settlement has already been approved by the court, settlement funds are set aside by the defendants and are available to be distributed. We encourage all eligible companies to claim their share as refunds could be significant depending on the size of your claim. Only companies who file the claim will receive a refund. We are leading experts in claims filing, valuation and refund recovery and can help manage the entire process with minimal time commitment from you.

2. Is my information confidential?

The court appointed Claims Administrator is bound to keep your information, including your company name and all proprietary data, totally confidential. The agreement you sign with CCA also requires us to keep your data confidential and we only use your information to file your claim or for evaluating eligibility in future settlements.

3. I'm busy. How much time will this take and what information do I need to provide?

We have two primary objectives - 1. Minimize the amount of time our clients have to spend on preparing the claims package, and 2. Maximize the recovery for our clients.

Based on the similar settlements we have worked on in the past, we anticipate that the defendants will provide your beef purchase data to the claims administrator. Once the claim filing process starts, we will work with your team to ensure that the data is accurate. CCA will manage the entire claim filing process on a turnkey basis.

4. How much is my claim worth?

Typically, the amount recovered is dependent upon many factors including: the size of the Settlement Fund, the number of eligible Class Members that file a timely claim, and the size of your firm's claim, etc. The refunds are made on a pro rata basis, only companies who file the claim will receive a refund. The refund will depend on your eligible beef purchases over the class period. We can provide an estimate of your refund based on your transaction volume.

5. I haven't heard of your company. Will you provide references if requested?

Absolutely! We have helped thousands of companies over the years and would be happy to provide references.
